

A FEW REMARKS CONCERNING THE HABITAT OF THE GIULEȘTI PHASE OF THE BOIAN CULTURE

CRISTIAN EDUARD ȘTEFAN

In this article the author discusses settlement types and their structure in what is known as the Giulești phase of the Boian culture. After a brief review of previous research in this area, other aspects like the general structure of a neolithic settlement are considered. The lack of systematic research in this field makes almost impossible the attempt to reconstruct the types of habitat in the Giulești phase, the publication of data being unsatisfactory.

In the settlements of this phase are mentioned both surface dwellings and pit-houses, no special disposition of this structures in the plan of settlements being remarked. In some cases, like Gălățui-„Movila Berzei” or Piatra Sat-„Vadul Codrii” are mentioned special structures considered „sanctuaries”. Both this settlements are surrounded with shallow ditches. Another special place is the one of Silișteea-„Conac” that may be interpreted as station linked with hunting ceremonies or the cult of ancestors. The final part of this contribution contains a list with the sites belonging to the Giulești phase of the Boian culture.